

Current Challenges, Future Solutions: The evolving field of survey methodology.

Tuesday 24 October 9am – 12:30pm

Location

L J Hume Centre
Haydon Allen, Building #22,
Australian National University

Workshop is followed by light refreshments
This workshop is free and open to the public.

Registration required

E feodor.snagovsky@anu.edu.au

Surveys are a mainstay of social research methods, but rapidly changing research realities mean these methods must constantly evolve. This event brings together researchers from the survey research community for a short workshop geared towards sharing knowledge and finding solutions to specific research problems.

Presenters will briefly outline specific challenges from a variety of survey research contexts. The bulk of the sessions will be devoted to discussion and brainstorming.

Presenters

Presented by

School of Politics and International Relations
Centre for Social Research & Methods
ANU College of Arts & Social Sciences

Dr Nicholas Biddle

Centre for Social Research and Methods;
Centre for Aboriginal Economic Policy
Research

Prof Patrick Dumont

Luxembourg National Election Study; School of Politics and International Relations

Prof Toni Makkai

World Values Survey and Asian Barometer;
College of Arts and Social Sciences

Prof Ian McAllister

Australian Election Study; School of Politics and International Relations

Prof Henrik Oscarsson

Swedish National Election Study;
Department of Political Science, University of Gothenburg

Dr Darren Pennay

Life in Australia; Chief Executive Officer,
Social Research Centre

Dr Jill Sheppard

World Values Survey and Asian Barometer;
School of Politics and International Relations

Mr Feodor Snagovsky

Australian Election Study; School of Politics
and International Relations, ANU